VisualCart(TM) Adds Picture-Perfect Shopping to Internet Stores
InterClient Puts Business on the Web for $49.95

VANCOUVER, Wash., July 28 /PRNewswire/ -- With the release today of its fast, simple and full-featured QuickyMart(TM) "me-commerce" development tool for the PC and Macintosh, InterClient Corp. gives everyone the power to build a store on the World Wide Web.

Experienced site developers and total Internet newcomers alike will appreciate QuickyMart's elegant and intuitive desktop development environment. Working with digitized product images, anyone with basic computer familiarity can use QuickyMart(TM) to build a Web storefront and stock it with up to 50 items -- all in about an hour.

Available as a free, unlockable demo-ware download from <http://www.quickymart.com>, QuickyMart(TM) is the first PC and Mac client-side e-commerce development tool. It sells for just $49.95. Users can arrange hosting through their own Internet Service Provider, or pay a discounted $19.95 a month for simple one-button "print-to-web" hosting through InterClient.

Ideally suited for small and home-based businesses, QuickyMart(TM) delivers a host of features inside a distinctive file-tabbed interface. Using a mix of pull-down menus and simple text entry fields, storefront developers can select from 12 background styles, list product features in bulleted format and select from an array of built-in credit card and shipping options.

QuickyMart(TM) lets the developer randomly sort the order of catalogued items, and before uploading, allows for a full preview inside the QuickyMart(TM) application.

Mark Effinger, spokesman for InterClient Corp., says QuickyMart(TM) instantly becomes the standard to which other entry-level "me-commerce" products are compared.

"QuickyMart(TM) gives SOHO and emerging business people the easiest, most full-featured and lowest-cost way to conduct 'me-commerce'," Effinger said.

Customers visiting online storefronts developed with QuickyMart(TM) benefit from InterClient's exclusive VisualCart(TM). As customers add products to their order, their shopping cart provides pricing and miniature product pictures. That way, customers can fully view their purchase before checking out.

Best of all, shoppers save valuable time using storefronts developed with QuickyMart(TM). At many e-commerce storefronts, each calculation requires a time delay as data is sent from the customer's PC to the site server. With QuickyMart(TM), all calculations take place on the customer's PC. The shopping cart remains local until the customer sends the final order.

Despite recent media reports about data exposure with some e-commerce applications, Effinger says InterClient Corp. insures transaction security by using Verisign encryption technology to "hide" sensitive data before any transmission to host servers.

TEXT:

- 1 ZEELAND, Mich., March 18 /PRNewswire/ -- Herman Miller's e-commerce site (www.hmstore.com), home of award-winning furniture such as the Aeron(R) chair and pieces made by renown designers Charles and Ray Eames, has launched a new "Room Planner" feature. With the Room Planner, everyone --
- 5 be they technologically-savvy or tape-measure-challenged -- can easily choose, arrange, and purchase furniture for their home office or other residential rooms. Visitors to the site can choose to plan online, on paper, or in person with a live expert -- whichever makes them feel most comfortable.
- 10 The premise of this new feature is that shoppers should be able to visualize and experience how products will look in their own homes before they reach for their wallets. "Seeing how furniture will fit in their room before they buy is the best way to make sure our customers are satisfied,"
- 15 says Ray Kennedy, general manager of the online store. "Through the Room Planner, we've put technology to work to make sure shopping and decorating is easy and enjoyable."
- Of the three design options, the most innovative and perhaps the most fun is the online space planner. This feature allows browsers to arrange and rearrange a room that they've sized to match the dimensions of their
- 20 own by clicking on any of 154 furniture pieces and dragging them into different positions. "This unique technology lets visitors virtually fill their own rooms with everything from doors and windows to all types of furniture, including a wide selection of Herman Miller chairs and sofas," says Kennedy.
- 25 "Shoppers can move items to wherever they'd like, and they can even scale their pets to size and place them in the room." Visitors with HermanMillerStore accounts can print out a list of their desired products for easy ordering and quick checkout.

- 30 For shoppers who prefer the assistance of a trained professional, the Room Planner hosts the "Designer on Call" option. Although contact begins electronically -- with e-mail -- communication soon becomes more personal in the form of telephone calls and/or live meetings.

- For those who are reluctant to delve headfirst into this computer-driven age, the Room Planner's third option provides a more
- 35 traditional, "hands-on" approach. Grids and templates can be printed out on paper and then "cut and pasted" to create a room's layout.

HermanMillerStore (www.hmstore.com or www.hermanmiller.com) is the electronic storefront for Herman Miller, Inc., an international firm that makes and sells furniture for commercial office and residential use. Herman Miller, Inc. is headquartered in Zeeland, Mich.
